FADE IN:

INT. SUPERMARKET - DAY

Shoppers push carts around, filled with various items.

A CLERK (20) in the seafood department fills a cart with whole fish. They PLOP as they hit the basket.

CLERK

Will there be anything else?

The PENGUIN sits in the cart. He grabs a fish and eats.

The cart rolls away on its own. The clerk looks puzzled.

The Penguin finishes the fish and tosses the bones on the floor.

An ELDERLY SHOPPER (90) slips on it and falls--

THUD!

The cart rolls through the freezer section as the Penguin eats. People look at him, confused. The cart is half-empty.

Leaving the freezer section, the Penguin's cart BUMPS into a WOMAN's cart. He gives her a dirty look.

His cart continues on its way.

He reaches for another fish only to learn there aren't anymore left.

He climbs from the cart and walks toward the registers. He grabs a soda from a small fridge.

He pulls a dollar from a non-existent pocket and hands it to the cashier. He continues on his way.

CASHIER

Just the soda?

Automatic doors open for the Penguin and he leaves. He opens the soda.

PSSSHT!

The cashier looks at him, confused.
